The National Women's Council Honors Exceptional Women in Business at Houston Women's Conference

Houston, TX – On September 29, 2016 the National Women's Council will host the 2016 Houston Women's Conference at the Sheraton Suites Houston. This conference offers women a venue to learn from and network with the top female business leaders in the state. An exceptional group of leading women in business will also be recognized for their professional accomplishments. The theme of this year's conference is "Breakthrough to Excellence."

"The Women's Conference is an excellent place to showcase the great strides women have made in the business world," said Dennis Kennedy, Founder & Chair of the National Diversity Council. "Highlighting the leading women in Houston shows women that their aspirations are not unattainable."

The Top 15 Women in Business award will be presented during the conference Awards luncheon. This award honors deserving female executives in various organizations within the Houston area. These women drive change and inspire others to succeed while contributing to business growth and the strategic direction of the organization.

Conference attendees will have the opportunity to enhance their professional skillsets by discussing topics such as "Leading with Emotional Intelligence," "Being Politically Savvy in the Workplace" and "Owning Your Career." These topics were designed to challenge conventional ideology and promote organizational changes incorporating gender diversity.

Registration for the Houston Women's Conference is ongoing and can be completed at www.houstonwomenconference.com/register. For more information, please contact Avauna Walker at avauna.walker@nationaldiversitycouncil.org.
